Hello Facilities Management Team,

On behalf of Tom Satterly, I would like to call your attention to an announcement that came out last week from SOURCE. It is specific to some of our colleagues here in Facilities Management.

The SOURCE article mentions that the CSU Cares Program was awarded a grant in which 19 “essential Colorado State University employees recently received the life-changing gift of an electric bike, providing them with reliable, affordable and consistent transportation.” Of those employees, some folks within our very own department benefited. On July 14, they picked up their e-bikes and safety gear, and were enthusiastic to talk about their gratitude for this experience and how they are using the bikes.

Brad Hestdalen (left) “Very happy to have the opportunity to be a part of this program. The bike is amazing and gets me out-and-about with exercise on top of the freedom to not have to depend on the bus or finding a ride after work.”

Jose Silva Medina (right) “The bicycle is excellent transportation. I use it every day to come to work and to visit my family. I like it to get exercise, and it is saving me a lot of money on gas. I am using the bicycle instead of driving for many activities. I appreciate this bike very much and would like to say thank you to whoever donated them.”

John wishes to thank everyone involved in providing him with the bicycle. He rides it every day to work and back.

Edward Dunbar (right)
“It is an enjoyable bike that is easy to use, and I am excited to see more e-bikes around town. I use it to commute to work, go grocery shopping, and just for the fun of riding.”

We can all be proud that CSU tops the list of bike friendly universities! If you use a bike or are interested in doing so, take a look at this resource and others on safe cycling at CSU from Parking and Transportation Services.

Best,
